

Your IT and automation integration specialists

As your partner for clever IT and MES solutions in the production environment, our range of services is focused on your processes and requirements. We will help you to achieve greater transparency and efficiency throughout the production environment, even in demanding production processes – using software and services which connect people and processes, systems and locations.

With our range of software solutions and services tailored to your own requirements, as well as our sound knowledge of the interfaces and technologies of automation systems, we are in a position to perform practically any assignment from the sphere of process control systems, including wireless integration with neighbouring systems such as ERP and automation systems.

We also deploy our intelligent MES solution InfoCarrier®, implement lean MES functionalities, and provide system-agnostic advice for your production IT solutions – from design to implementation.

We offer professional services to help with the wide range of challenges you face:

- Increasing production transparency with centralised data acquisition and processing to produce suitable indicators (KPI)
- MES conceptualisation: support from ideas analysis through creation of a requirements specification up to the focusing and development of a system-agnostic tender
- Integrated automation / MES concepts and projects: the integrative approach enables efficient and fully coordinated concepts and solutions
- Standardised MES functions based on InfoCarrier®: applications in the data acquisition and processing domain, quality and sample management, material management, performance analysis (such as OEE), and measures management as well as energy management (EnMS)

- IT projects for production processes: customised streamlined solutions based on standardised databases, interfaces, and communications systems – precisely aligned to your particular environment

For us, the first step in building a cooperative relationship is having a one-on-one conversation. This will provide us with information about your situation, your challenges, and the specific conditions at your location. Then we will be in a position to show you whether and using which resources we will be able to assist you in solving the challenges you face. Ever-present in our mind is how to make you more successful. In the context of your project, we will support you in increasing productivity, improving reliability and data integration, reducing the costs of production, and increasing the quality of your products and/or reducing waste.

As your reliable partner, we stand with you in each phase of implementing your production-specific IT projects. With our varied and extensive practical experience both in production IT and automation, we not only develop concepts and solutions highly focused on your needs, but also ensure that their introduction runs smoothly – including subsequent servicing and maintenance.

A streamlined solution for your production IT to sustainably protect your competitive advantage

- + Transparency:
Centralised data acquisition and analysis with the generation of KPIs increase the transparency of your production process.
- + Performance:
Untapped performance in the production area is identified and can be exploited as part of the continuous improvement process (CIP).
- + Efficiency:
Standardised solutions and methods increase your efficiency in recognising, classifying, and implementing measures.
- + Cost:
Optimal use of all resources lowers costs and streamlines production.

Streamlined MES and IT functionalities precisely matched to your requirements allow you to secure and extend your competitive advantage. Our great wealth of practical experience will assist you in realising and assuring quality in your projects.

For large, medium-sized, or smaller companies – we work flexibly on production IT projects as well as associated areas such as packaging and storage, and offer solutions perfectly adapted to our customers' needs. With decades of project experience combined with specific industry expertise, on/off it-solutions gmbh is your skilled and reliable partner.
